DISCOVER PATTAYA'S NATURAL CHARM
MEET THE NATIVE PLANTS THAT CALL CHONBURI HOME

Beyond the beaches and bright lights, Pattaya hides a greener side — one filled with wild blooms, tropical scents, and stories rooted in Thai nature. Take a moment to wander off the main road and meet some native plants that make the eastern coast truly alive.

Kaempferia chonburiensis (Chonburi Ginger)

Where: Forest paths near Khao Chi Chan, Nong Nooch Tropical Garden
A rare wild ginger discovered right here in Chonburi! Its lilac-purple flowers appear after the rain — tiny bursts of color close to the forest floor.

Wrightia religiosa (Water Jasmine)

Where: Naklua, Sattahip temple gardens, and quiet canals
Soft white petals, a calming fragrance, and gentle branches that sway in the breeze — the Water Jasmine is often planted for meditation and serenity.

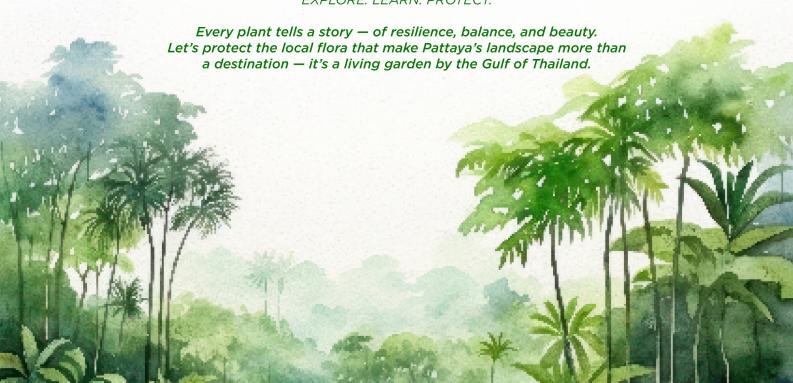

Globba winitii (Dancing Ladies Ginger)

Where: Shaded forest trails of Banglamung and Khao Mai Kaew
Look for its elegant purple and yellow "dancers" beneath the trees. Locals say these blooms resemble graceful Thai dancers — a hidden show in nature.

EXPLORE. LEARN. PROTECT.

Every plant tells a story — of resilience, balance, and beauty.
Let's protect the local flora that make Pattaya's landscape more than a destination — it's a living garden by the Gulf of Thailand.

WILDLIFE OF PATTAYA
NATURE BEYOND THE BEACH

Discover the wild side of Chonburi! From forested hills to seaside gardens, these native species remind us that nature is never far away.

Photo Credit:
THAI NATIONAL PARKS

LONG-TAILED MACAQUE (Macaca fascicularis)

WHERE: Khao Chi Chan, Wat Yansangwararam
Curious and playful — you'll spot them near temples and forest trails. Observe quietly, and they might strike a pose!

VARIABLE SQUIRREL (Callosciurus finlaysonii)

WHERE: Naklua parks, Jomtien Beach, Silverlake, and forest edges
Quick, agile, and often seen leaping between palm trees — these colorful squirrels add a lively touch to Pattaya's green corners!

Photo Credit:
THAI NATIONAL PARKS

MONITOR LIZARD (Varanus salvator)

WHERE: Sattahip wetlands & park ponds in Pattaya
Graceful and calm, these gentle giants often bask under the sun or swim lazily in canals.

TOKAY GECKO (Gekko gecko)

WHERE: Garden villas, forest lodges, local homes
Famous for its echoing "To-kay!" call — a charming night guardian of Thai houses.

Photo Credit:
THAI NATIONAL PARKS

TRAVEL KINDLY, EXPLORE WILDLY.
BE PART OF PATTAYA'S LIVING NATURE.